FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

In August, the fund demonstrated a positive performance of + 1.94%.

Due to stimulus measures from central banks, bond yields fell even further in recent weeks. Weakened by the strong Euro and the moderating effects of the "Brexit", the Euro zone should see growth slow down. Central banks will continue to conduct extremely accommodative monetary policies and strengthening of quantitative stimulus measures remains relevant in the Eurozone. Due to a sluggish economy and low inflation, changes in yields are likely to remain uneven. Nevertheless, the prospect of increasing quantitative stimulus measures should prevent long rates from rising rapidly. European rates will remain low in coming months. The perception that the Fed will raise its intervention rate by year-end could lead to accentuated tension on longer maturities. The search for yield has also affected borrowing with the incorporation of credit risk, regardless of the class of debtors. Yields have fallen and spreads significantly compressed.

During the month, we bought Turkiye Vakiflar Bankasi 3.5% 2019, Aviva 3.375% perpetual and Nordea Bank 4.697% perpetual.
